

Editors' Association of Canada/Association canadienne des réviseurs Branches and Twigs Policy

Effective date: June 2021

Policy purpose

The purpose of this policy is to foster good governance in the branches and twigs of the Editors' Association of Canada/Association canadienne des réviseurs.

Policy statement

The Editors' Association of Canada encourages the formation of new branches and twigs and is committed to supporting existing branches and twigs.

Definitions used within this policy

"Branch" means a full branch of the Editors' Association of Canada as described in section 8 of Bylaw No. 1 (2014). It is composed of a minimum of 30 members.

"Twig" means a small, informally organized group of members of the Editors' Association of Canada. It is composed of a minimum of five members.

Applicability

This policy applies to

- the national executive council
- branch executives
- branch staff
- twig co-chairs
- members
- national office staff

Responsibility

Under s. 8.01 of Bylaw No. 1 (2014), the association may establish branches within Canada as the membership may determine.

Where a local group of members is interested in organizing itself to conduct some association activities but is not prepared to become a branch, the national executive council may establish a twig.

Every year, each branch must elect an executive and each twig must elect twig co-chairs.

Each branch and twig must call a minimum of four membership meetings a year, one of which must be an annual general meeting of the branch or twig.

Each branch and twig receives funding from the national association.

- Branches can set up their own bank accounts and administer their own funds. Branch officers, who are appointed under section 6.01(f) of Bylaw No. 1 (2014), must submit the following:
 - reports and financial reports as required by the national executive council (NEC)
 - annual financial reports to the NEC.
- Twig funds are held by and administered through the national treasurer. The national treasurer submits an annual twig financial report to each twig.

Branches and twigs are accountable to the national executive council. Branch and twig activities and policies must be consistent with the aims and objectives of the association as articulated in the association's articles and bylaws and in any related documents approved by a vote of the membership at a national meeting of members.

Branches and twigs may not undertake any activity that

- is the responsibility of the national executive council, and/or
- contravenes an applicable national policy or a directive of the national executive council, and/or
- requires a national vote of the membership, such as awarding an honorary life membership.

Branches and twigs are expected to fulfill their requirements as specified in this policy and expanded on in the relevant procedures.

There are set criteria for forming and dissolving branches.
